Tips for Raising Perseverant Kids

1

Help your child list some goals, including spiritual goals.

2

Regularly pray with your child about his/her goals.

3

Remind your child God is in control, loves him/her more than he/she can understand and has all knowledge and wisdom.

4

Encourage your child to focus on doing the next right, godly thing while working toward his/her goals.

5

Help your child rebound from setbacks, mistakes and failures as he/she works toward goals. Remind him/her that perseverance is continuing on the right path in spite of problems or a delay in achieving success.

6

Encourage your child to remain hopeful about his/her goals and especially about God's promises.

7

Teach your child to resist worrying about possible future obstacles and problems.

8

Encourage your child to continue taking any actions needed toward achieving goals—no matter how long it may take.

9

Celebrate every step toward achieving your child's goals.

10

Remind your child to continue studying scripture and praying as he/she works on the various goals in order to keep the goals in line with God's will.
